

Kooyong Farrago Chardonnay 2015 – Reviews

James Halliday Australian Wine Companion 2018

Ned Goodwin MW

Tangy stone fruit flavours cut a swathe across one's first impressions. The high quality oak sits in there, too, merely an adjunct to guide the unwinding flavours, rather than a shout above the wine's inherent complexity. The intensity of flavour, rapier-like initially before expanding to a broader blade, is impressive. The finish is exceptionally long. A wine to drift off to.

To: 2025.

Taut and trim, with a penetrative, mineral and smoky bouquet of grapefruit, lemon and creamy nougat-like notes backed by ginger, cloves and matchstick oak. It's long and stylish, with an evenly paced and textured presence of searingly intense fruit, fresh oak and struck match minerality wrapped in a bracingly fresh acidity. Give it time.

Intensity and length, is what pops into my head after the first sip. Wheatgerm, grapefruit, white peach, struck match and cashew. It bursts with ruby red grapefruit and peach, has a firm flinty texture and tight acidity, yet gentle glycerol texture to smooth things along, and finishes with supreme length, crackling with fireworks and juicy acidity. Great wine. Now, or later.
