The most refined pinot, perhaps. Ferrous, the Gevrey; this, the Chambolle, for lack of a better comparison. Sappy, crunchy and finessed across a red fruited weave of a mineral thread, this lovely wine offers a long caress across the palate. Nothing out of place.

A beautifully complex mix of dark cherry, high quality oak and spice leads into a linear palate showing bright wild cherry flavours guided along by fine fleshy tannins. Balance, intensity and length with some lovely mineral notes to wrap things up.

With a full red to brick-red colour, the bouquet is savoury, earthy and slightly meaty, while the palate is supple and fruit-sweet, soft and harmonious with cherry fruit and toasty oak intermingling. It needs and responds well to aeration.
