

Port Phillip Estate Red Hill Pinot Noir 2017 – Reviews

James Halliday Australian Wine Companion 2020

David Bicknell

Pale bright red with a watery hue. Delicacy and fragrance the name of the game here. All manner of red fruits - currants, raspberry, alpine strawberry - plus a leaf of leaf litter or autumn leaf, all neatly placed in a light-bodied frame of fine lacey tannin. The finish long and fresh. Really good current drinking.

94 points

The Wine Front, 12th June 2018

Campbell Mattinson

This is pinot noir for purists. It's nicely ripened, carrying enough flesh and fruit, but all the while it's built on structure, spice, acid, tannin, scaffolding, you get the drift. It's a frame on which various flavour garments and highlights are draped. It feels sure, it smells perfumed, it drifts long, it's light in a positive way. If I saw this, I wouldn't hesitate.

93 points

James Suckling, August 2018

Nick Stock

An array of sour cherries, pomegranate and blood orange on the nose. This has a powerful kick of acid and tannins on the palate. Energetic, fresh and fine.

93 points