

Port Phillip Estate Pinot Noir Shiraz 2019 – Reviews

Gourmet Traveller, Bounty of Blends, June/July 2020

From Port Phillip Estate's Red Hill vineyard, this 50/50 blends shows red cherries, blackcurrant leaf, earth and cherry juice. The palate is savoury and slightly stemmy, with earthy notes underpinned by the dense black plum flavours and dusty but subtle tannins.

First release of a Pinot Noir-Shiraz from Port Phillip Estate at Red Hill on the Mornington Peninsula; a natural place to experiment with this blend if ever there was one. It's a 50/50 blend and it saw no new oak.

Frisky. Perfumed. And super fresh. Beaujolais-like, if you like. It's driven by red cherry and mulberry flavours mostly but florals, peppers and herb notes drift through. Great to drink. Nods at savouriness but it's only a nod. Love the shape, feel and flavour profile here. Tangy acidity is a positive too. Will be at home on the lunch/dinner table.
