A lean yellow hue with notes of spices, pears, citrus and florals on the nose. Good concentration, good balance, a supple almost creamy texture, and an intensity which continues throughout. Excellent length and a fine example of Mornington Peninsula Pinot Gris which will drink well over the next four years.

dominate. There's plenty of crunchy acidity and some grippy phenolics that drive the length and mouthfeel.

I'm a fan of wines that feature, as part of their flavour profile, a keen line of grapefruit and this is one such wine. Pear, citrus and apple characters add extra bite and flesh, while flint notes add some flash. This for me is excellent buying and drinking.

Pale straw, lively and fresh in the glass. Pretty aromas of baked apple, pear, nectarine, and nougat. Fresh and punchy on the palate, citrus, green melon, pear, and stone fruit flavours
