

Port Phillip Estate Tuerong Shiraz 2023 – Reviews

The WineFront, February 2025

Gary Walsh

Comes from 17 year old vines, and gets no new oak, though 33% second fill puncheons were employed. Hand-picked. 10% whole bunch. It's spicy, a little sappy, raspberry and redcurrant, with a light meaty and red capsicum whole bunch character. Medium-bodied, offers excellent cranberry crunch and freshness, emery board tannin, just a little bit nutty too, with a bright red fruited finish of excellent length, laced with some blood orange. It's light, finely wrought, and so compelling. So stylish. So good.

Highly aromatic, highly pleasing to drink. Florals and pepper, baking spices and red fruits. This charms all the way through to the textural tannins and vibrant, crunchy acidity. It's quite mouth-watering and, in a way, contained, with all the parts coming together to make a complete wine.
