BELLVALE

Bellvale Pinot Gris 2025

The WineFront, May 2026

Campbell Mattinson

This is tight and reserved, in profile, but the mid palate is well flavoured and it has quality written all over it. The new owners of Bellvale have really hit the ground running. Pear, slate, apple, hay, lemongrass and woodsmoke characters ripple throughout, with both texture and energy balanced adroitly. I'd bet on this wine improving over the next 12-24 months too.

The Real Review, August 2026

Mid-straw and bright. Lifted and fragrant aromas of pear, baked apple, sweet spice, melon and vanilla. Mouth-filling and textured, with a core of stone fruit, apple and crunchy acidity. There's grip and shape here and the finish is long

Halliday Wine Companion, October 2026

At first this seems lean and tight across the palate, shy even, but it unfurls in time. After some air, florals, musk and warm spices pop out, and there's a strong pear essence aroma and flavour, too. The palate comes dabbed with stone fruit and softish acidity, making it a pleasant drink-now pinot gris.
